PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As we ring in the New Year and bid goodbye to the old, I would like to reflect on our accomplishments of the past year and look forward to what lies ahead for the Society.

During 2018, under the excellent guidance of our outgoing president, Carol Deibel, we have expanded our outreach to the Harford community through some exciting new events and programs. These include the very popular monthly Brown Bag Luncheons, our lecture series, the Genealogy Seminars and the special events that promoted our county's history and the people who made it happen.

It has been a successful year, and we are determined to do even better this year. We have some new programs planned, including two bus trips to historical sites, and a continuation of the Brown Bag Luncheons. And there will be more; just keep an eye out for our email announcements.

But as we look forward, we must face the fact that maintaining our commitment to the community does not come without cost. Our facilities are historic, but that also means they are old and that comes with a high maintenance cost. Just keeping the doors open is costly and we are thankful for the many volunteers who give their time to the Society so that we can fulfill our mission.

But to fully do our job, we must increase our income. It is my goal for the coming year, to increase our membership and expand our funding programs in order to maintain the sustainability of The Historical Society of Harford County.

If you haven't visited for a while, stop by and see what we have to offer. You may be surprised.

George F Harrison, President 2019

COMING EVENTS

Brown Bag Lunch Series

The Brown Bag Lunch Series continues this year with some wonderful speakers and stories. On Tuesday, January 8, 2019 from 12:30 – 1:30 p.m. Barry Lee of the Muncee Nation will provide us with the story of the Eastern Woodland Culture and Wampum Belts. Mr. Lee is a noted speaker, dancer and singer, known for his performances at Powwows throughout the country.

He has been nominated for the Native American Music Award six times. Currently, he is Co-Executive Director of the Circle Legacy Center, an organization to promote and assist Native Americans in the Southeast Pennsylvania region. Come learn about the importance of Wampum belts and the Lenape's agreements with William Penn. Don't miss this opportunity to ask questions and learn more about the Native Americans who originally lived along the east coast of the country.

Barry Lee, Muncee Nation

February 12th, the Brown Bag Lunch will feature speaker, Jim Chrismer. His talk is entitled, Bound for the Line: Harford County and Fugitive Slaves. Come learn about Harford's involvement in the Underground Railroad and the local personalities who promoted and benefited from efforts to advance the cause of liberty. As a border state, sympathies ran in two directions, making Harford County abutting pro-Union, Pennsylvania a hot bed of activity before the Civil War. This is an opportunity to hear some of the amazing stories of escape and flights to freedom as part of our celebration of Black History Month.

Right is of no sex; truth is of no color; God is the Father of us all, and we are all brethren - Frederick Douglas, The North Star

On March 12th from 12:30 – 1:30 p.m., the Brown Bag Lunch Series will feature Rich Wiltison, an APG historian who will describe the 1917 development of Aberdeen Proving Ground: its impact on canning, agriculture, existing communities and the military.

Brown Bag lunches are free for members. For non-members there is a charge of $5 per person to cover expenses to the Historical Society in presenting the speakers. If you have any questions, please contact the Historical Society of Harford County at (410) 838-7691. Reservations are not required.

HAYS HOUSE HAPPENINGS

Hays House Museum once again closed out the season with its annual Christmas Open House. On December 1 and 2, visitors were treated to the 1788 house decked out in an array of holiday greenery and seasonal decorations created by members of the Country Garden Club of Harford County. On Sunday, the Catherine Street Consort played seasonal music on period instruments.

The Country Garden Club, now in its 71st year, has worked with the historical society and Hays House since 1960 when the historic house was saved from demolition and moved to its current location. The original landscaping plan developed by the garden club included planting the row of hollies, now sizable trees, lining the fence along the parking lot – useful for today's holiday decorating.

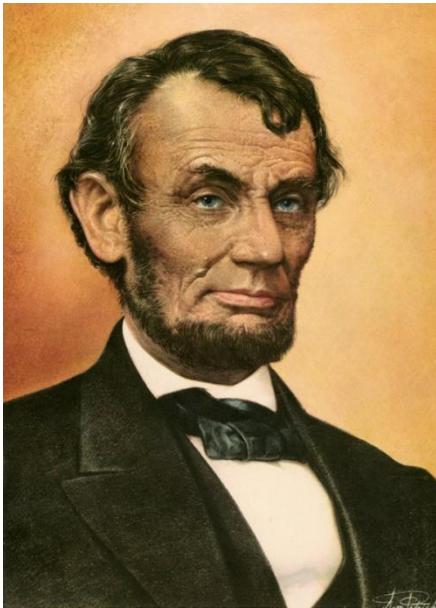

Each year, member clubs of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland are invited to decorate trees representing each county for display at The Maryland State House. This year, the ladies of the Country Garden Club took inspiration from the historical society archives in decorating the Harford County Christmas tree. The tree's theme was the history of the canning industry in Harford County. With the help of collector and expert Bernie Bodt, antique canning labels were collected and copied, and a display was created for the tree.

Agriculture has been an important part of Harford County's economy since its founding in the early 18th century with the fertile soil along the Chesapeake Bay and the Susquehanna River. Water and rail transportation led to the development of canneries with ready export to Baltimore and cities across the country. George Washington Baker is thought to have started the county's first cannery in Aberdeen in 1866 leading many to follow. From 1880 until the 1950s, there were more than 700 canneries in Harford County leading to it being called the canned vegetable supplier to the nation. While farming continues to prosper, canning is no longer a major industry in the area but played a memorable role in the county's history worthy of recognition.

LINCOLN'S SECRET TRIP THROUGH HARFORD COUNTY

by Bill Pfingsten, Archives Volunteer

Early in the morning of February 23, 1861, President-elect Abraham Lincoln passed through Harford County. His trip took less than an hour and no citizen of Harford County knew of his presence. Lincoln probably slept through the entire event. This 17-mile journey seems unimportant, but the reason behind the trip made news throughout the United States.

Although Abraham Lincoln was known throughout the country from newspaper reports of the Lincoln- Douglas debates in 1859, few people outside Illinois had heard him speak. In the 1860's, presidential candidates did not campaign as they do today. They relied on newspapers and campaign workers to convey their positions on the issues of the day.

After Abraham Lincoln won the election of 1860, his staff planned an inaugural train trip from Springfield, IL to Washington, DC to introduce the president-elect to his electorate. The plan included ninety separate stops or speeches along the route. Some gatherings included more than 100,000 spectators. In addition, people lined the railroad tracks to see the Lincoln train as it passed. The route only included northern cities that strongly supported the Republican, with one exception, Baltimore, Maryland.

The trip began in Springfield Illinois on Monday, February 11, 1861 and proceeded through Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and concluded on February 23 in DC. On the morning of February 22, Washington's Birthday, Lincoln gave a speech at Independence Hall in Philadelphia and unveiled the new 34-star flag following Kansas' entry into the Union. He then boarded his train for a trip to Harrisburg with stops in Leaman Place and Lancaster. After speaking before the Pennsylvania state legislature and Governor Andrew Curtin in Harrisburg, he was scheduled to continue south the following morning on the Northern Central Railroad through York County, PA, Harford County, MD, Baltimore County, MD and Baltimore City to the Calvert Street Station.

Early in the trip, Allan Pinkerton, of the Pinkerton Detective Agency was hired by the railroad to be the president's body guard. Pinkerton received word that there would be an attempt to assassinate the president during his stop in Baltimore. The Maryland election results in 1860 were 42,482 for John C. Breckinridge a Southern Democrat, 41,760 for John Bell a Constitutional Unionist, 5,966 for Stephen A. Douglas a Democrat and only 2,294 for Abraham Lincoln the Republican. All 8 electoral votes went to Breckinridge. Maryland was a slave state and had little love for the Republican.

Based on the assassination report, new plans were drawn up to bypass his scheduled speech in Baltimore on February 23. The president-elect secretly boarded a train and returned to Philadelphia. There he boarded an 11pm special train at the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore (PW&B) station and began a nighttime trip to Baltimore. Telegraph lines to the south were cut to prevent word of this schedule change. The remaining inaugural train, with Mrs. Lincoln and the Lincoln boys stayed in Harrisburg and proceeded to Baltimore along the Northern Central route the following morning.

The PW&B railroad ran from Philadelphia to Baltimore, crossing the Susquehanna River from Perryville to Havre de Grace. The first railroad bridge crossing the Susquehanna at Havre de Grace would not be built until 1866, so in 1861, trains were loaded on the ferry boat, Maryland, and shuttled across. At some point in the early morning hours of February 23, 1861, Lincoln entered Harford County. From Havre de Grace he passed through stations in Aberdeen, Perrymansville, Edgewood, Magnolia and crossed bridges over the Bush River and Gunpowder River, entered Baltimore County and proceeded to the President Street Station in Baltimore City.

When he reached President Street Station, it was still dark. His rail car was then pulled by horses to the Baltimore and Ohio Station at Camden Yard where he gave a brief speech before a small group, boarded a Baltimore and Ohio train and continued his journey to Washington, DC. Baltimore newspapers and other southern newspapers ridiculed Lincoln for sneaking through the city. Some publishing cartoons of the president-elect disguised in a long coat wearing a tam and hiding in a freight car.

It should be noted that there was no direct connection between Baltimore railroad stations. Passengers were shuttled between stations by carriage cars. Horses pulled these cars from President Street Station to Camden Yard on tracks in the middle of Pratt Street. The city did not allow locomotives to pass through the city because of the danger of fire from hot cinders

Less than two months later, the first Union casualties of the Civil War occurred along the same Pratt Street route between President Street Station and Camden Yard. A Baltimore secessionist mob attacked Massachusetts troops headed to Washington to defend the capital. Four soldiers and twelve rioters were killed. In May of 1861, martial law was declared in Baltimore and Union troops were stationed in the city to arrest and detain secessionists. Union soldiers were stationed at the Gunpowder and Bush River bridges as well as Havre de Grace to protect the railroad ferry from secessionist's attacks. It's entirely possible that there would have been an attempt on Lincoln's life had he delivered his scheduled speech in Baltimore.

While serving as a Congressman from Illinois in 1848, Lincoln probably rode the PW&B through Harford County while attending the Whig Convention in Philadelphia. He would have crossed from Havre de Grace to Perryville on an earlier ferry named Susquehanna. During his presidency, he made at least two trips through Harford County on the PW&B. On June 23 and 25, 1862, he made a secret trip to West Point, New York to meet with retired general Winfield Scott. Then on June 16, 1864, President Lincoln, his wife Mary and son Tad rode to Philadelphia to attend the Great Central Sanitary Fair.

GOOD NEWS

This past August, Society member, Curtis Pace met with two historians from Virginia, Edward Wright Haile and Connie Lapallo, representing the Chesapeake Conservancy when they visited Harford County to place a plaque on the Gas and Electric property adjacent to Aberdeen Proving Ground that marks the John Smith Chesapeake Trail. The marker is part of the Captain John Smith Chesapeake National Historic Trail commemorating Smith's explorations of the Bay from 1607 – 1609. The trail is the nation's first all water national historic trail.

The Chesapeake conservancy and its partners pinpointed 24 locations for the original crosses. In an ongoing effort, the Conservancy is marking the spots for modern day adventurers to retrace Smith's journey using small stone markers. LEGACY PROGRAM: THE FUTURE IS WHAT YOU MAKE OF IT

Your generous support for the Society over the years is greatly appreciated. But you may be able to do even more through a charitable gift that could permit you to leave a legacy, while possibly providing valuable tax savings as well.

For generations, the Historical Society has collected and preserved the artifacts, stories and documents that tell the history of Harford County and its citizens, sharing this remarkable tale with its members and visitors, assisting researchers and offering programs that bring this history to life. To continue this work requires long term financial assistance. The Board of Trustees recently developed a Legacy Program that we hope will help continue our mission for the long term. It's easy – Here's how:

- Name the Society in your will, codicil or revocable trust.
- Designate the Society as a full, partial or contingent beneficiary of a retirement account (IRA, 401K, etc.)
- Designate the Society as a beneficiary of your life insurance policy.
- Make a gift of a specific asset, such as real estate, stocks, bonds or other assets
- Gift a specific dollar amount or a percentage of your estate.

There are many options to consider and the Society welcomes you to contact us. For more information, please call Maryanna Skowronski, Director, 410-838-7691 or visit our website at www.HarfordHistory.org. For those of you, who have already named the Society in their will or left a Legacy by any other means, please let the Director know so we can recognize you as part of this ongoing Legacy Program. We truly appreciate your consideration.
